

The World of Ink & OUTRAGE

1710 The Statute of Anne is passed. It is the first statute in British law to grant copyright to the printed word

1735 The Hogarth Act, named after William Hogarth, extends copyright protection to engravers of original prints in England, but not Ireland

1742 George Frideric Handel's oratorio Messiah is performed for the first time in Dublin

1751 Benjamin Franklin's Experiments and Observations on Electricity is published

1755 Samuel Johnson's Dictionary is published

1760 King George III accedes to the thrones of Great Britain and Ireland

1761 King George III marries Queen Charlotte

1764 Eight-year-old Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart performs for King George III and Queen Charlotte

1765 The Stamp Act passes, and the British government establishes a tax on paper in American colonies. Resistance to the act becomes the first major movement in the Revolution against British rule. The phrase "No taxation without representation" becomes popular

1768 The Royal Academy in London is founded

1773 In opposition to the British Tea Act of 1773, American colonists protest by throwing tea shipments into the Boston Harbor, which becomes known as the Boston Tea Party

1776 The US Declaration of Independence is drafted and signed

1778–89 The madness of King George III leads to constitutional impasse between the British and Irish Parliaments

1780s Jean Baptiste Point du Sable settles at the mouth of the Chicago River and becomes the first non-Native resident of what would later become the city of Chicago

1783 The Treaty of Paris formally ended the American Revolutionary War and recognized the United States of America as an independent nation

1788 The US Constitution is ratified, replacing the Articles of Confederation

1789 The Storming of the Bastille marks the start of the French Revolution

1791 James Gillray's Oh! That This Too Too Solid Flesh Would Melt is published in London by Hannah Humphrey, copied in Dublin by William McCleary circa 1810–1820

1793 French King Louis XVI is executed

1798 The Irish revolt against British rule in the Irish Rebellion, aiming to establish an independent Irish Republic

1798 James Gillray's Portrait of an Irish Chief; Drawn from Life at Wexford is published in London by Hannah Humphrey

1800 US Congress moves operations from Philadelphia to Washington, DC, establishing the city as the seat of the federal government; US Library of Congress is established

1801 The Act of Union united Great Britain and Ireland into one nation, parliament, and monarchy

1803 The Treaty of Amiens temporarily ends war between Britain and France and allows travel to continental Europe

1806 Thomas Rowlandson's A Cake in Danger is published in London, copied in Dublin by William McCleary circa 1810–1820

1807 The Slave Trade Act is passed, prohibiting the Atlantic slave trade in the British Empire

1813 Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice is published

1812–15 War of 1812 is fought between the United States and Great Britain

1815 The Battle of Waterloo is fought, marking the end of the Napoleonic Wars

1818 Mary Shelley's Frankenstein is published; Illinois becomes the 21st state

1820 The death of King George III marks the accession of George IV, ending the longest reign of a male monarch in English history; William Heath's The-Omni-Buss is published in London by Thomas McLean

1821 King George IV visits Ireland

1824 Drumming Out, or Cupid Giving the Word of Command is published in London by Samuel William Fores

1829 The Catholic Emancipation grants religious freedom to English and Irish Catholics

1836 The Prints and Engravings Copyright (Ireland) Act finally gives copyright protection to engravers in Ireland

1837 Chicago is incorporated as a city; Queen Victoria accedes to the throne of Great Britain, ending the Georgian period

Caricatures from top to bottom: Oh! That This Too Too Solid Flesh Would Melt; Leap Frog!!; Portrait of an Irish Chief; Drawn from Life at Wexford; An Early Lesson of Dancing!